I hate AI

Good Spot. Good dog.

Top level domains that scammers don't typically buy:

- .com
- .co.uk
- .com.au (etc)
- .gov
- .net
- .ca

Domain	Price
Voice.com	$30 million
360.com	$17 million
NFTs.com	$15 million

If the word to the left is also short and common, then it's expensive and less likely to be owned by a scammer.

Scammer's domains get shut down often.

So they need cheap ones.

Sadly....

There are some cheap .com top level domains.

Dear Eliriana,

I'm in a bit of a bind here and I need a favor. I'm currently traveling and have come across an incredible opportunity to secure a deal that save our company. However, to lock in this deal, I need to make an immediate payment, and due to some ridiculously frustrating issues with my bark and the time difference, I can't process the transfer myself.

Here's where you come in. I need you to quickly transfer $50,000 to the account details below. This is urgent and the future of our company could depend on it. We do not have time to go through the usual channels as the deal will expire within the next few hours.

I don't want us to miss out on this.

Bark Details:

Account Name: Dôg Fôôd Ôppôrtunities Inc.

Account Number: 123456789

Routing Number: 987654321

Bark: International Trust Bark

Please do this immediately. I am counting on you to not let this opportunity slip through our fingers. Our competitors are also on the lookout and we need to act fast!

I understand this is outside protocol, but I wouldn't ask if it wasn't crucial. I'll sort out the paperwork with finance and explain the situation to the board when I'm back.

Thank you for handling this. I knew I could rely on you in a crunch.

Best,
Spôt Scamp
CEO,

This is really important.

Please do it NOW!

Your job depends on it.

Say hi to your two daughters for me.

- A YouTube video.
- Podcasts.
- Interviews.
- Video conferences.
- Lectures.
- A public recording.
- A voice-chat.

Naughty Spôt (sobbing and sniffing):
[Using the cloned voice of the victim's relative]

"Dad. It's me (sniff). I've done something stupid and they've got my luggage."

Victim: "Who? What happened? Are you okay?"

Naughty Spôt: "No. They kidnapped me. I'm being held until I pay it off. It's embarrassing, but I gambled a bit too much, and now I owe money that I don't have and I can't even get my passport. They're not joking around. If I don't pay $20,000 by tomorrow, I don't know what they'll do. Please, you're the only one I can turn to. Don't tell Mom. Pleeeeeenez?"

What about video?

Victim: "This is so unlike you! But of course, I'll help. How do I get you the money?"

Naughty Spôt: "Thank you. You can't tell anyone, especially not mom. It would just make things worse.

I know you don't know how to use BitCoin but it's the fastest way and I'll tell you how to do it (sniff). Please? You have to do it quickly. They're scaring me.

Impersonation Scams: Spôt could create videos where he deep-fakes the likeness and voice of a trusted individual: CEO, public figure, or family member Blackmail: By creating compromising videos of individuals, Spôt could engage in extortion, demand payment or action to prevent the release of the fabricated material.

Disinformation Campaigns: Spôt could use deep-fakes to create false narratives and spread disinformation, potentially swaying public opinion or causing unrest.

Legal and Political Manipulation: Spôt could fabricate evidence to discredit individuals in legal cases or influence political processes and elections.

Corporate Espionage: By faking communications from company executives, Spôt could initiate fraudulent transactions or steal trade secrets.
